

Matt has occupied numerous senior security roles across various sectors, including healthcare, retail, logistics, warehousing, and the private security industry. He has successfully led teams of varying sizes both locally and nationally, and in Europe.

With over 19 years of accumulated knowledge and experience, he now serves as the Head of Healthcare Security. He develops and manages the national security strategy in this capacity, driving continuous improvement through data analysis, innovations, auditing, and team development.

Matt is passionate about advancing the violence reduction agenda and collaborates with other specialists to establish and maintain workplace violence mitigation measures.